About Compass:

You are now or were recently holding the first 7in release from a man called "Compass." At one point Compass lived in Boston, MA but his whereabouts these days change from time to time. The two fine tunes included on this 7in vinyl album were conceived and recorded in the Oni Gallery in Boston's Chinatown district. The song themselves remind me of those times when you'd be quietly listening to your mom's Beatles records only to have her barge in

Quotes:

"Compass matches harsh distortion buzz with sparkling synth / drum loops for a heady brew that goes down nice and thick." -Skyway

"it's a lo-fi, basement-beat, electro-pop-rock gateway to introspection and fun. The best unheralded seven inch I've heard this year." -- KVRX and start vacuuming your rug. Given the fact that you couldn't stop her (without risking your toes), you more or less resigned yourself to enjoying the soothing melodies over the asthmatic whine of that old vacuum cleaner. Sometimes, though unfortunately not often, the songs began to float and twist. Swirling with the breath of the vacuum, those familiar sounds found a new life. Compass knows how work the vacuum.
